

ACEing Autism currently provides recreational tennis programs to over 1000+ children with autism spectrum disorder at multiple locations nationwide.

PARENTS

The game of tennis provides so many meaningful opportunities to enrich the development of children, especially those on the autism spectrum.

Tennis has an innate give and take rhythm that encourages turn-taking, fine and gross motor skills, focus and attending, motor planning, and eye-contact.

This is a program that promotes both the physical and social benefits of sports and recreation to a population that often misses out on both.

Upon completion of our program, your child will receive a medal & a certificate of achievement, making your child an ACEing Autism champion!

VOLUNTEER WITH US

We are looking for bright, energetic, and sporty individuals to volunteer one hour a week at your local ACEing Autism site. All types of volunteers are welcome; from local high school and college teams, tennis enthusiasts, special education teachers, ABA therapists, SLP's, OT's, and students studying at any level who possess good character and leadership skills.

It is a chance for you as a volunteer to brush up on your tennis skills and gain valuable experience working with children on the autism spectrum. Knowing how to play tennis is not a prerequisite to volunteering, but it helps!
